Summer School for Global Leadership 2022

Resilient City Planner

Resilient City Planner

22-26 August 2022

With the global population living in urban cities projected to reach 66% by 2050, the building of sustainable and resilient cities has become a common focus across the world in the recent decade.

Being regarded as a megacity, Hong Kong is at high risk of natural hazards, namely heavy rainfall, storm surges, and typhoons. Furthermore, in the wake of climate change, Hong Kong is very likely to encounter unpredictable climate anomalies and conceivably severe natural hazards.

The HKFYG Leadership Institute proudly presents the Summer School for Global Leadership (SSGL) 2022. Partnered with the Planning Department and the Hong Kong chapter of the United Nations Sustainable Development Solutions Network (SDSN), SSGL this year will shed light on "Resilient City Planner", allowing participants to equip themselves as sustainable leaders with a global vision to contribute to the building of a more sustainable and resilient Hong Kong.

What is Urban Resilience?

Many cities are not only vulnerable to the impacts of climate change, such as flooding, typhoons, storm surges, and heatwaves, but also at risk from chronic stresses such as traffic congestion, pollution, and uncollected waste.

Urban Resilience refers to the ability to absorb, recover and prepare for future shocks in terms of economics, environment, society and institution. The construction of resilient cities will promote sustainable development, well-being and inclusive growth for the community.

FAQ

Q1: Will the Summer School be cancelled if the outbreak of the pandemic gets worse or remains unstable?

A: Participants' health is always our top priority. We will keep updating participants on our latest decisions. If the situation becomes unstable, the Summer School will be conducted with alternate plans.

Q2: How do you ensure online training quality?

A: The Summer Schools offers a wide range of educational activities that encourage experimentation and practice. Participants will be motivated to learn in an online learning environment by interacting with different digital platforms and tasks. Group leaders will provide support and give guidance to students. Feedback from participants will also be collected daily to advance training effectiveness.

Q3: What precautions will you take to ensure a safe and clean environment for the physical sessions of Summer School?

A: In order to comply with the vaccination requirements for Specified Premises under Cap 599F, a third dose of the COVID-19 vaccine is required for participants. We will continue to monitor the developments of COVID-19 closely and follow the latest guidelines issued by the government and health authorities. Participants have to submit a health declaration every day. Participants who have a fever or respiratory symptoms will not be allowed to attend the training. Please note that if a participant is notified by the government of medical authority to undergo a COVID-19 test, he/she must comply and should not attend the training until receiving a negative result.

Q4: Will hygienic tools be provided?

A: Hygienic materials such as hand sanitiser and surgical masks will be available on-site. Participants are advised to bring their own hygienic materials, which will also be provided upon request. The HKFYG Leadership Institute follows the government and health authorities' latest regulations and guidelines and registers visitors' details. The measures ensure the prioritisation of participants' health and safety.
